

This contemporary home was designed by Tad Grodzki, R.A., principal of GranDesign Studio, Inc., as a residence for himself and his wife.

It needed to relate to the home next door. The site is adjacent to the architect's father-in-law, who lives in a 100-year old Tudor house. The two, family houses share a garden.

The new house gives a nod to the older one, in its use of earth-toned stucco and stone. It also echoes the Tudor's articulated front, while making a singularly modern statement.

Contemporary Home in Silver Spring, Maryland

Tad Grodzki, R.A., GranDesign Studio, Inc. / Silver Spring, MD. / 301.608.8198

The family (next-door neighbors) composition

FIRST FLOOR PLAN

SECOND FLOOR PLAN

THIRD FLOOR PLAN

The Grodzki house site, a narrow lot with a ten-foot slope, dictated a house that could be built into the hill, with layers that stepped back to follow the land slope. The interior is laid out in promenade form.

The heart of the house is a light-filled 3-story atrium, with a winding wood and glass staircase that leads to the main living floor. On the main floor, a multi-spatial living room, lounge, kitchen and breakfast room surround the atrium. All have views connecting to each other, through carefully placed atrium wall cutouts.

Another flight of stairs leads to a third-story terrace roof deck, 25 feet above the street. The master bedroom suite, lounge and media room are located on this private floor.

Throughout the house, large modern artwork compliments its open, sculptural sensibility. The architect, who is Polish-Italian and lived for a long time in Argentina, used color blocking to accent select interior and exterior walls. The result is a lively, modern, customized home, unique within Silver Spring.

Contact: GranDesign Studio, Inc. / 912 Thayer Ave, Silver Spring, MD, 20910

Tad Grodzki & Ali Sohrab, Principals

Phone: 301 608 8196 / website: grandesignstudio.com

Photography credits: John Cole Photography / David Blecman, Positive Negative